CITY OF KIMBERLEY

Storage Of Salt And Sand Integral To City's Operations

City of Kimberley is a small resort city in southeast British Columbia, Canada. It sees an abundance of snow each year so snow removal and road maintenance is integral to the city's operations. This made it necessary for the city to have a salt/sand storage facility.

When Don Schacher, project coordinator for the City of Kimberley started researching a facility that would be suitable, he found that many other road maintenance companies were using a fabric-covered structure for this application. As per usual, Mr. Schacher sourced several different quotes and as he said, "Norseman Structures' price was right".

The City of Kimberley chose a 30' wide x 30' long A-Series model with 6' legs on 4 rows of concrete, pre-cast blocks. The ends were left open for easy access.

In Mr. Schacher's words, "I would like to express that the personnel that Norseman sent to Kimberley to erect the fabric structure, were beyond being professional in their conduct and workmanship. It was a pleasure working with them and I'm hoping that the City and Norseman (Structures) can work with each other in the future."

The customer was very pleased with the overall process. From choosing the building design to the good communication between Norseman and himself which included a conference call allowing input from all parties. Don was also pleased with the ease of installation - the building went up in 2 days and everything went smoothly.
